

Touring is an amazing way for us to be challenged, to gain deeper insights, greater inspiration and more powerful motivation in our studies

Touring inspires us to explore, experiment and experience things beyond the everyday, producing an open and searching mind

When we tour, everyone grows in personal confidence and becomes more self-reliant, organised and responsible. We learn to be more independent, expand our horizons and become globally aware

The experience of touring makes us more resilient and collaborative members of our group, therefore better citizens of the community and of our world

Touring gives us first hand experiences which are not available at home. We will be at the very heart of things in a way that books, movies, websites and not even school can ever hope to match

When we tour we put ourselves in the very centre of where it all happened (and is happening now) which generates a deep understanding and authentic knowledge base which cannot be achieved any other way

Music is a FINE ART (not an industry, nor a consumable product, nor simply entertainment):

- It speaks symbolically, therefore powerfully about us
- It creates enduring statements about who we are to future generations: what we believe, what we value, how we live, our priorities, culture and civilisation
- It is inseparable from its own culture, history, place and time
- It is inextricably linked to painting, sculpture, poetry and architecture
- It is completely entwined with religion, philosophy, politics and economics

We tour to experience and perform music in new and amazing places which we cannot do at home
